

Simply being with You, day after day and sharing everything with You, not needing to talk because losing myself in your eyes is enough to make me understand... Life is beautiful, you don't need to search far because happiness is made of an infinity of small things that you should enjoy in the present...